Tropical rainforests are truly one of the Earth's greatest treasures. These precious places are home for over half the species of plants and animals on the planet. Rainforests provide oxygen, help control our climate, and give us delicious foods and life-saving medicines. They are crucial to life on Earth as we know it. And they are rapidly disappearing!

Scientists estimate that humans destroy at least one acre of rainforest every minute, a rate which could easily result in their complete destruction within our lifetime. The forests are being cleared to make room for cities and roads, farms, plantations and ranches, and with the trees go thousands of plants and animals that can live nowhere else.

Why This Rainforest?

The Costa Rican Rainforest – A Magical Place

From lush valley growth, to misty mountain cloud forests, Costa Rica is blessed with some of the Earth's most beautiful and valuable rainforests. The variety of life here is astonishing! For example, you can find rarely seen beetles, birds, bats, snakes, six-foot lizards, monkeys, mushrooms and amazing vines, plants with healing powers and exotic flowers. There is variety of life so rich we have only just begun to know a fraction of it. We don't want it to disappear.

Rainforests absorb the carbon dioxide and release oxygen into the atmosphere. When the forests are destroyed too much carbon dioxide remains in the atmosphere.

KSE chose Costa Rica for its rainforest programs because it has a stable, democratic government and a growing national park system. This is an investment to protect rainforests with proper care. This includes education programs, trail systems, guards and fences. This means that it will stay a rainforest through the national park system.

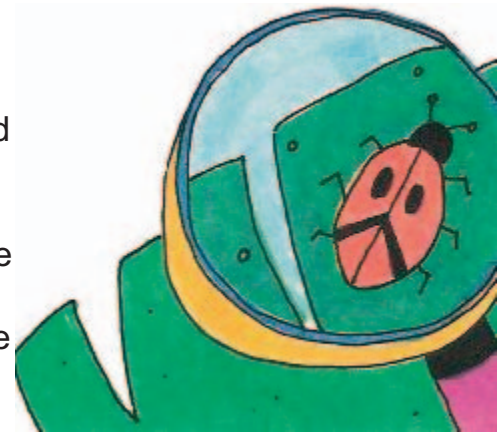

A Zone of Protection - The Kids for Saving Earth Rainforest

Costa Rica's "Braulio Carrillo National Park" is filled with many varied plant and animal species. Learn more at: www.anywherecostarica.com/national-park/braulio-carrillo.htm Conservationists from many nations are working to enlarge the park by buying more land. The Organization for Tropical Studies (OTS) helps the Kids for Saving Earth Rainforest Program. It uses money you donate to buy land and protect this land with fences, trails and guards. Once we purchase the land it is extremely important that it be protected from hunters and loggers.

A Source of Important Scientific Research

Preserving the rainforest in its natural state is an essential first step. But the Costa Rican rainforest is also an intensive scientific research site that benefits rainforests around the world. The La Selva Biological Station borders this national park. Operated by the Organization for Tropical Studies, it is a shared effort by leading universities, conservationists and researchers from around the world. Scientists and students live in the rainforest and work with local people to understand its mysteries. This new knowledge helps people everywhere preserve rainforests in their part of the world by showing them new ways to use these treasures without destroying the forests that produce them.

Please Join Us In This Vital Mission!

Almost every minute of every day, another acre of rainforest disappears forever. We may never learn about countless living treasures, all precious to the future of our planet. Please help us preserve these treasures today for all generations to come. Click here to donate by credit card to the Kids for Saving Earth Rainforest Program.
