

EcoE pals.

Go for it!

I want to tell the President that bugs are important!

Did you know that you can tell the president, the vice president, your senator, your congressional representative, and other governmental leaders how you feel about environmental issues. Maybe you would like to explain your ideas to your mayor or city council member. You can do it! If you want them to know that the Earth needs protecting -- tell them! Always be polite!

To email the President and Vice President:

president@whitehouse.gov

vicepres@whitehouse.gov

To write a post card to the president click here

To see what other kids have written click here

To find contact info about your states governmental leaders

Be sure you know your zipcode.

Also there is a spot on the same page for you to find your state and local e-mail addresses at this site.

Here's some idea's about what to say!

Make a list of the important things about Earth-saving that you want to e-mail to your governmental leaders. Tell them you are concerned about the health of the land, air, water, and all living creatures. Always be polite. Don't forget to e-mail KSE a copy of your letter.