Read For Our Earth Challenge!

Join other kids from around the world in this challenge.

1. Ask your friends, family, and neighbors to pledge you a certain amount of money for each book you read from now until an ending date you will choose. A month is usually a good amount of time. Write down their names and the amounts pledged on the sponsor sheet in this project.

2. You can read any book that you'd like. Set a goal for yourself and for your club or school! Keep track of each book that you read on the Reading Record in this brochure

3. Questions? Contact Kids For Saving Earth. Phone: 651-277-2222

Email: KSE@KidsforSavingEarth.org Tell us how many books you read and the money you earned.

Keep Track of your groups progress!

Have a "Used Book Sale" for Earth

Reading used books for our "Reading for Our Earth Challenge", is a way you can raise funds to help Earth and reuse old books. Parents love to put their old books to good use and usually have many books to donate!

Add a leaf for each student and show the number of books they have read..

Lisa read 4 books

Mia read 3 books

Joe read 8 books

Suzan read 6 books

1. The easiest way to have this challenge is to pair it with another event at your school. If you are having a school carnival, have a used book sale. Or if you are having a concert, add this sale to your event or any other event.

2. Create an announcement notice asking for donations of old books for kids and adults. Send it home with all students at least one month in advance of your sale. Have a contest to see which class can collect the most books!

3. Ask each classroom to provide at least one volunteer for the sale day. Send around a schedule/sign up sheet. Include a set-up and clean-up time. As an art project ask classes to make a poster/flyer about the sale to place in the school hallways or to send home.

4. Charge one amount for hardbound books and another for paperback books. i.e. 50 cents for hard bounds and 25 cents for paperbacks. Bargain prices attract the most customers. Watch the fun as everyone digs through the piles at the sale to find just the right book. The books can be for everyone. Not just kids.

Read For Our Earth Challenge. Join us! Put together a whole team from your school (KSE club members, friends, and classmates) and see how many books you can read! See how much money you can raise. Tell your friends, family, and neighbors about how you're protecting Earth by reading!

Spending the Money

There are lots of Earth-saving ways to spend your money including field trips and donating a portion of the funds you earn to KSE. Or you can:
Create a Children’s Forest at your school.
Have a Rock the World Concert
Put on an Earth Expo in your school.
Plant a Pollinator Place on your school grounds.
Buy Earth-saving books,posters and more for your classrooms.
